Specification

3. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed. The examiner suggests including details about multi-level recording of files and related sub-files.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) The invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kondo et al (US Patent Number 6122245).

Regarding claim 1, Kondo discloses:

An apparatus (figure 4) for processing information stored in a data carrier (column 1, lines 10-15) in which information can be stored in places defined by a first position indication (figure 4, objective lens in a lowered position) and by at least a second position indication (figure 4, objective lens in a raised position), comprising:

A carrier head (figure 4, item 21) for reading and/or writing data in said data carrier (column 4, 10-25), control means for moving said carrier head in accordance with the positions (column 4, lines 15-25);

Wherein said information stored in the data carrier is arranged in files (figure 5, items A1 & B1) and related sub-files (figure 5, items A2 & B2) such that at least a part of a file with its related sub-file is made accessible from said first position (column 4, lines 15-53).

Regarding claim 2, Kondo discloses the features of base claim 1, as stated in the 102 rejection above, and further discloses:

Wherein the data carrier is a removable one (column 1, lines 17-33; CD-ROM drives are well known to be removable).

Regarding claim 3, Kondo discloses the features of base claim 1, as stated in the 102 rejection above, and further discloses:

Wherein the data carrier is an optical disc comprising at least two layers (figure 5, items 1 & 2), the first position indication defining a location on the surface area of the disc (figure 4, item 1 is on the surface area relative to the light beam) and the second position indication defining the envisaged layer (figure 4, item 2 is envisaged relative to the light beam).

Regarding claim 4, Kondo discloses the features of base claim 1, as stated in the 102 rejection above, and further discloses:

Wherein means are provided for managing a defect in a file on the basis of other related files (columns 5 & 6, lines 46-67 & 1).

Regarding claim 5, Kondo discloses the features of base claim 1, as stated in the 102 rejection above, and further discloses:

Data organized in files (figure 5, items A-1 & B-1) and related sub-files (figure 5, items A-2 & B-2) such that at least a part of a file and its related sub-file are close together (figure 5).

Regarding claim 6, Kondo discloses the features of base claim 5, as stated in the 102 rejection above, and further discloses:

Constituted by an optical disc having at least two layers (figure 5, items 1 & 2), wherein the files with their related sub-files are on different layers in the same locations of the disc (figure 5, items B-1 & B-2 are on different layers at the same location).

Regarding claim 7, Kondo discloses the features of base claim 6, as stated in the 102 rejection above, and further discloses:

Wherein the files and related sub-files are placed close together in one or a plurality of layers (figure 5, items B-1 & B-2 are close together in 2 separate layers).

Regarding claim 8, it contains method limitations that are similar to, or inherent from the limitations of claims 1-7, as stated in the 102 rejection above, therefore, claim 8 is met on the same basis.

Regarding claim 9, Kondo discloses the features of base claim 1, as stated in the 102 rejection above, and further discloses:

An optical head suitable for the apparatus (column 4, lines 10-15).
